Aiden Grimshaw, possibly the most controversial contestant to leave the X Factor since the Irish twins Jedward, performed at the Chapel, Salisbury, on Thursday 18th November, delivering a beautiful series of songs and achieving a very loud (if a very high pitched) cheer of approval. Although, in many people's opinion Aiden sung amazingly on the weekend hit show, performing, and pulling off, many legendary songs such as "Mad World" and "Rocket Man" his part in the reality TV programme ended surprisingly early as he was voted out on Sunday 14th November, much to the disappointment of his thousands of fans. After having a meet and greet session and posing for photos which will be treasured by many for life, Aiden came on stage and seemed, surprisingly, taken aback by the number of screaming fans who were there to see him. He even held his hands to his ears as he walked up the stairs to try and protect them from the deafening screeches coming from teenagers and mums alike.

After nervously greeting the audience, Aiden, after a quick swig from his beer placed beside him, began to sing. Although many would expect his voice to be drowned out it was strong and confident as he sang to the audience which was roughly 200 people. Unlike many other men his age he wasn't put off by the random shouts of "I love you" and the odd marriage proposal from a few of the keener fans.

Although after he had left the number of people quickly decreased the few that did decide to stay enjoyed the rest of the night, sky high on the amazing performance Mr. Grimshaw delivered.
