

Cafe Review

Venue: Cupcake Heaven

Date: 25 January 2011

Reviewer: Megs Slark

From the few times I have wandered past Cupcake Heaven and peered into the tasty looking interior through the window, I could tell they were the kind of cupcakes that weren't like ordinary cupcakes. These were an extra special sugary treat. So, when the opportunity to review this crumbly cake cafe came about, I jumped at the chance!

As I entered the shop, I was kindly greeted by the shop owner Ruth. I explained I was from the UNIT Young Reviewers, and she gave me a bit of information on her business. I now understand they bake their cupcakes and cake slices fresh each morning, coming up with exciting new flavours. "Maybe one morning we'll have oranges in, and we'll make a chocolate orange batch," she smiles.

After being talked through the excellently wide range of cakes and beverages, I make a hard decision between marshmallow and butterscotch cupcakes, in the end I go with the latter, and sparkling elderflower juice. Ruth offers to bring my order over to me, so I take a seat. I noticed the cutesy pink decor and the happy atmosphere as I looked around the cafe. I couldn't help but smile at the fact I felt as if I was in a fairy tale land.

I bit into the soft, springy sponge and tasted the creamy, thick icing on my tongue. This was certainly a beautiful moment in cupcake history. The hint of toffee was equalled in taste only by the refreshing ability of the juice. And if all of that wasn't enough, Ruth happily passed me four cupcakes to take away upon my exit. What a lovely cafe.

So now, I'll sit back and enjoy my Mocha, Raspberry, Chocolate and Carrot pieces of Heaven, while you put on your coat and rush there to enjoy yours.
